

Congress To Open Throttle On Legislation

ALONG BRODHEADS CREEK: THE STRUGGLE OF A GIANT. Last week King Bros. Circus announced it had gone bankrupt in Middletown, Conn. Yesterday, one part of that circus, got "stranded" at Stokes Mill, waiting for more funds so it could move on to Macon, Georgia. There, at 5:30 in the afternoon, handlers led three giant elephants down to water in the creek. A crowd, like crowds that gathered all day, followed the elephants along.

Dying Circus Troupe Stranded In Locality

By Leonard Randolph

DEATH COMES to a circus the way it does to some men—in a slow, stalling, painfully paralytic groping between the day and the night.

Yesterday the men and women and children of Stroudsburg, Stroud township and the rest of Monroe County had a chance to watch a part of the process of dying which has stilled the travels of what was once one of America's finest circuses.

For years it flew under the proud—if tragically gaudy—banner of King Bros. This past month the brothers let everyone in America know that things were not as they should be.

Bad News

The circus, in short, was bankrupt, the brothers said. And it was pretty much the same with a lot of other circuses and "carnies" all over the country.

Most of the King Bros. circus show and personnel got the bad news while they were doing a stand at Middletown, Conn. The information was terse and to the point.

Pack up, the man said, and head for Macon, Ga. Macon had always been the winter headquarters for the circus.

One part of the troupe packed up Wednesday afternoon. With Burnham Perry as transportation officer, the detail started out from Middletown on its way to Georgia. There were six large semi-trailer trucks—two of them cage trucks holding animals.

There were three elephants, a hippopotamus, a polar bear, a black bear, two hyenas, two lions, three horses and three ponies. There were also eight human beings.

Hard luck set in halfway out of Connecticut, Perry said. Four tires blew out. They had to be replaced. That "ate up most of the travel money we had," he said.

Late Friday night Perry's particular platoon of the King Bros. army limped its way into East Stroudsburg. It became the center of interest immediately. Saturday night it moved over to Stokes Mill.

The presence of the circus caused one alarmed homeowner to call police—but it had nothing to do with an objection to the trucks being on the scene. The caller was only checking on one thing.

In the middle of the night, he said, he'd heard a lion roar. He was just checking, he said, to make sure he wasn't hearing things. The policeman assured him there was a real lion around, that it was safely in a cage and that it did, on occasion, roar.

Slashes Appear Imminent In Britain's Defense Budget

LONDON, July 15 (AP)—Sharp slashes in Britain's defense budget appear imminent. There is a growing feeling here that the Soviet threat is now more economic than military.

The Russians are making headway in a campaign to convince Western countries—particularly Britain and France—that arms expenditures are the root of their economic woes. It could have a far-reaching effect on the Western defense setup.

Prime Minister Eden's Conservative government is under pressure to make drastic cuts in both defense—as much as 33-43 per cent. Government ministers are talking in terms of a 25 per cent reduction.

Spending

Britain now spends about 4½ billion dollars on defense out of a total annual budget equivalent to 12½ billion.

The Labor party opposition has long been clamoring for slowing the defense program.

Over the weekend, Liberal Leader Clement Davies, whose party often supports the government's general policy, joined in demanding a cut. Davies suggested nearly 1½ billion dollars could be lopped off.

"The whole strategy of war has completely changed," he said. "Today what is really needed is a small professional, very highly skilled army, consisting in the main of technicians."

Weather, Time Figure In Crash

FT. DIX, N.J., July 15 (AP)—A fateful combination of time and weather appeared today as a major factor in Friday's disastrous military transport crash that took 45 lives.

A seven-man board of inquiry, including an Air Force weather expert, went out today to the piney swamp where the four-engine C-118 was ripped and shattered 90 seconds after takeoff from adjacent McGuire Air Force Base.

For the time being, the Air Force probe team remained mute on the possible cause of the crash, the first major disaster in the history of the Military Air Transport Service.

Critical

Four of the 21 survivors—five of whom were still in critical condition today at Ft. Dix Army Hospital—agreed that erratic air current had dropped the plane earthward before the crash.

U.S. Weather Bureau meteorologist George Whiteley, at Trenton, said it was possible there was a baby tornado in the area around takeoff time, 3:35 p.m.

Whiteley described a baby tornado as a very severe thunderstorm with a frontal cloud and spiral winds. Ground damage in Camden, 20 miles from this base, showed there were such violent conditions nearby, he said.

Weather records at Trenton, 15 miles from Dix, showed a heavy rain lashed the area from 12:40 p.m. to 4:10 p.m. Friday.

Pakistan Official Visits

ANKARA, Turkey, July 15 (AP)—President Iskander Mirza of Pakistan arrived today for a two-week official visit and talks with Turkish leaders on mutual projects and problems.

He is expected to solicit Turkish support in Pakistan's effort to have a U. N. plebiscite on the future of Kashmir, in dispute by Pakistan and India.

Output Passes 'Magic' Mark

Total Goods Roll Over $400 Billion

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—The nation's total production of goods and services passed the "magic" 400-billion-dollar annual rate in the final quarter of 1955 and rose to an even higher rate of $403,400,000,000 a year in the opening quarter of 1956, the government reported today.

Economists and government officials long have talked of the day when the economic pace would rate. President Eisenhower has said the nation's economy should grow to 500 billion annually within the next 10 years.

The Commerce Department revised figures for the last two years and the first quarter of 1956 showed the Gross National Product—GNP—almost doubling from the 209½ billions it reached in 1946 at the end of World War II. In 1939 the total was just over 91 billion dollars.

New Record

Besides reporting a new record for output of goods and services, the July survey of current business to appear soon will show that: National income edged upward to a new annual rate of 335 billion dollars the first quarter of this year compared with 324 billion for the year 1955 and 298½ billion for 1954. The 1956 first quarter rate was 500 million dollars higher than for the last three months of 1955.

Personal income rose to a new high annual level of 317½ billion dollars for the first quarter of this year, or about three billion dollars above the last quarter of 1955. The new rate compared with 306 billion for the year 1955 and 287½ for 1954.

The report said extensive data now available to replace earlier preliminary estimates showed the GNP—total production of goods and services—slipped past the 400 billion mark to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 402 billion in the closing quarter of 1955.

It noted upward about 1½ billion more in the first quarter of this year. The first quarter rate is about 12½ billion more than the 391 billion output for 1955, which saw a boom in all lines. These figures are a great jump from the previous record of 363½ in 1953. The mild recession in 1954 caused a drop to 360½ billion that year.

Negotiations Resume In Troubled Steel Industry

PITTSBURGH, July 15 (AP)—Negotiations for the struck basic steel industry and the United Steelworkers go back to the bargaining table here tomorrow for a fresh try to iron out a new contract agreement.

The session will be the third in a new round of talks which began last Thursday after government mediators met separately with both sides.

David J. McDonald, union president, said before the weekend recess that there has been "no change whatever" in the 15-day-old strike.

John A. Stephens, U. S. Steel Corp. vice president and chief industry negotiator, has made no comment on the current talks. Joining with him in the negotiations are representatives of the country's two other largest steel producers, Bethlehem Steel and Republic Steel.

No comment

From every indication the industry is standing pat on its offer of a 52-month contract which it says, would provide a total hourly package of 17 2-3 cents an hour in the first year of the contract, McDonald values the package at 14 cents an hour. He has made it clear the union does not want a contract as long as 52 months.

McDonald has never revealed just how much he wants for the 650,000 strikers who were averaging $2.46 an hour before the walkout.

Thus far, the national economy has not suffered greatly from the strike, government experts say. However, unemployment in allied industries has been the 70,000 mark. Hardest hit are the railroad and coal industries.

New York Subways Crippled By Water From Huge Fire

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—Firemen today poured water for the second straight day on the gutted vacant building once occupied by Wanamaker's department store. Tons of water cascaded into subways, crippling service on two major lines.

At least 125 persons, most of them firemen, were hurt as the spectacular fire swept through the ornate, five-story structure—for years a landmark at Astor Place in Downtown Manhattan. The building was abandoned by Wanamaker's last December and was being demolished. The blaze apparently started Friday night, but firemen were not called until late Saturday.

Rapid Flow

Water from fire towers and hoses, flowing at a rate of 100,000 gallons a minute, gushed through the building into the Interboro Rapid Transit and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit subways on either side of the building. Both lines connect Manhattan and Brooklyn via the Wall Street financial district.

The water washed out the roadbed and mounted to a depth of 15 feet in the IRT tunnel. Some 400 passengers from three stalled trains were helped to safety by firemen using ladders.

City officials said a section of the Lexington Avenue IRT line may be out of service for about 30 days as the result of the flooding. Alternate subways are available but riders faced an added crush in getting to work Monday morning.

Acting Fire Chief Arthur J. Masset said of the blaze: "This is the worst fire I have ever had in 34 years."

It was discovered early last night. Five alarms brought some 300 firemen and 55 pieces of fire apparatus to the scene, and thousands of spectators gathered in nearby fire-lit streets to watch.

Flames shot through the windows and roof of the building. A heavy pall of smoke spread over lower Manhattan and slowly drifted toward the center of the city.

Fire Commissioner Edward J. Cavanagh said the fire probably started Friday night. By the time firemen arrived Saturday, he said, two below-street levels of the building were a raging inferno.

Cavanagh blamed the extent of the fire on a watchman's failure to report smoke he detected Saturday morning.

Margaret Rumored Seeing Peter

HAMBLEDEN, England, July 15 (AP)—Princess Margaret visited friends in the countryside tonight amid speculation she is again seeing Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

Townsend is the divorced war hero who gave up last year because of her duty to church and crown.

The princess was the house guest this week end of bookstall millionaire Lord Hambleden and his Italian wife in this secluded English village 35 miles from London.

Sparkling in a chic white suit, topped with a white coat and white hat, Margaret attended the morning service at the village church just across the road from Hambleden's rambling manor.

A police guard stood by the gates of the house—once a hiding place for King Charles I in the years that led to England's civil war.

Village Square

Around the village square were small groups of persons titillated by reports a new chapter in the Margaret-Townsend story could be in the making.

But whether Townsend who showed up unexpectedly in England a week ago, had in fact seen the princess was still a mystery. He, too, was reported spending the weekend in the country. His precise whereabouts were not disclosed.

Townsend, who showed up unexpectedly in England a week ago, was reported only somewhere in the country with friends.

Townsend's mother told newsmen: "I am not saying where my son is."

There are seven guests besides Margaret at the Hambleden house party.

Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express suggested the possibility of a "final meeting" of the princess and the pilot by asking: "Is Townsend Among Them?"

The question was left unanswered by Lady Hambleden, the 22-year-old former Italian countess. She declined to identify the other guests.

"I do not want to give the names," she said.

Vets Finish 37th Annual Encampment

PHILADELPHIA, July 15 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars ended its 37th annual encampment yesterday with election of officers and a gala parade through mid-city.

The veterans elected Morton Fromm, 40, a Lock Haven attorney, their commander. He had no opposition and was elected unanimously.

William J. Tepsic of Pittsburgh was elected senior vice commander and Mrs. John W. Grimm of Uniontown was named president of the auxiliary.

Dr. John C. Cavender, a physician at Hop Bottom in Susquehanna County, was named junior vice commander in the one contested election. He defeated John B. Capitulo, a former Philadelphia County commander.

Customarily

Customarily, the junior vice commander succeeds to state commander in two years.

Fromm, who succeeds Marlan O. Walter of Millersburg, rose from private to staff sergeant during World War II. He served in the European theater and was wounded twice. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. He is a bachelor.

Other auxiliary officers named were: Mrs. Catherine C. Atticks, Grantville, senior vice president; Mrs. Aldah G. McDannel, Meadville, junior vice president; Mrs. Dorothy J. Turner, Shoenakersville, conductress; and Mrs. Florence C. Anderson, Harrisburg, secretary-treasurer, re-elected.

Intelligence Officials Barred From Interview

INGOLSTADT, Germany, July 15 (AP)—Western intelligence officials were barred today from interviewing the passengers and crew of the Hungarian airliner seized in flight by escapers Friday and crash-landed on a NATO air base near here.

Numerous officials tried unsuccessfully to contact the refugees after some Americans talked to them yesterday. German police politely but firmly told them to stay away and throw a tight guard around the hospital and hotel where the Hungarians are quartered.

Painting Dedicated

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—A painting of a Negro Madonna and Child was dedicated today at the 3,871-member St. Philip's Episcopal church in Harlem, the largest church in the denomination. The painting was presented to the church by the contemporary American artist, Irma Denagy.

Planes May Have Flown Over Grand Canyon To Show Scenery To Passengers Before Crash

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—A House member who made an on-the-spot study of the Grand Canyon air crash said today the two planes may have deliberately gone off course to give their passengers a look at the canyon.

The possibility that the United Air Lines and Trans World Airlines planes collided under such circumstances "doesn't seem to be the unlikely," said Rep. Hale (R-Maine).

Hale is a member of the House Commerce subcommittee that went to Arizona last weekend to look into the June 30 disaster that claimed 128 lives.

Hale said that from what he knows of the Grand Canyon tragedy, he assumes it was the result of a mid-air collision.

Reasoning

"It has been suggested that the pilots of both planes, having ample time at their disposal, were just taking their passengers to have a look at the Grand Canyon before proceeding on their journey.

"If that is what happened—and it doesn't seem to me unlikely—the passengers paid a very high price for a few moments of scenic enjoyment."

Hale said he thought it significant that both planes were off course at the time and that "this collision occurred not in the highly congested air space here in the Northeast, but in the comparatively empty air space of the great Southwest."

Hope To Adjourn By Saturday

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—Congressional leaders plan to push the throttle down starting tomorrow in a drive for final adjournment by Saturday but many lawmakers were skeptical of success.

Guesses on the windup date of the 84th Congress range from July 21, next Saturday, to Aug. with July 27 or 28 figuring in cloakroom talk as a likely bet.

The Senate, as usual, has the biggest backlog of work in the final crunch. Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) has scheduled a heavy program for the week, with each session starting well before the usual noon meeting time and running into the night.

The House plans to start debate tomorrow on a civil rights bill which could extend the session indefinitely if it ever reached the Senate floor. But the odds were against this happening, even though the bill probably will pass the House.

Leaders

Democratic leaders in the Senate are expected to seek quick adjournment once the bill gets through the House, in order to avoid a party-splitting row on the issue.

The Senate is expected to take up, probably tomorrow, the long-stalled Social Security bill, which passed the House a year ago.

Democrats plan an all-out fight to restore to the measure a disability benefits program and retirement privileges for all women at age 62, instead of 65 as at present. These were stripped from the House measure by the Senate Finance Committee at the request of the Eisenhower administration.

Also on the early-week Senate schedule are a dispute-laden customs simplification bill which passed the House in 1955, and a debate over confirmation of Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff to be a judge on the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals. President Eisenhower is asking affirmative action on both.

The President also has urged Senate leaders to dislodge a bill now stuck in the Post Office and Civil Service Committee raising pay of 600 top administration officials. It passed the House a year ago.

Good

Chances for Senate action appear to be good, but those hosing the legislation have indicated they expect in return administration support to get a civil service retirement bill through the House.

This measure, which would raise retirement payments for the 2,350,000 federal workers, still is in the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee. It passed the Senate earlier in this session.

President Returns To White House

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—President Eisenhower returned to the White House tonight, five weeks after undergoing abdominal surgery.

The President, accompanied by the White House physician, was driven back to the capital from his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., where he had been resting and recuperating from the operation for the past two weeks.

Eisenhower was described by a top aide as "enthusiastic" about resuming his duties. It was the President's first return to the executive mansion since he was removed to Walter Reed Army Hospital in an ambulance after an emergency intestinal operation June 9.

Arrival

Eisenhower arrived by automobile at 6:01 p.m. after a drive of a little more than two hours from Gettysburg. Riding with him was Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, his personal physician.

One of Eisenhower's other doctors, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, and Mrs. Heaton made the trip in a separate car.

Others in the 17-automobile motorcade included Secret Service agents, reporters and photographers.

The Heaton's have been guests of the Eisenhowers at Gettysburg ever since the President went there to continue his recovery from the operation, which was to relieve an intestinal obstruction.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower would be back at his desk tomorrow morning.

Details

Before the President left for Washington, Hagerty gave out some details of Eisenhower's projected trip to Panama City July 20 for the conference of American presidents.

Hagerty said in answer to reporters' questions that he feels Dr. Isidor Ravidin agrees 100 per cent with yesterday's medical report on the President by Drs. Snyder and Heaton.

They said the chief executive's recovery has "gained momentum" and "his condition continues to progress very satisfactorily."

Cypriots Boycott Legal Talks

NICOSIA, CYPRUS, July 15 (AP)—Greek Cypriots expanded today their boycott of talks with Lord Radcliffe of Britain on a proposed new constitution for this island.

Lord Radcliffe, a legal expert sent by Prime Minister Eden to consult with the islanders and British officials on a self-rule constitution—arrived here yesterday ready to see "anyone who wants to talk with me."

Union

But today the Greek Cypriot teachers union, Greek Cultural Assn., and half a dozen trade unions, religious associations and sports clubs issued statements or sent messages to Radcliffe saying they would not discuss the constitution while Archbishop Makarios is in exile. They also reaffirmed their demand for self-determination, the right to union with Greece.

Greek Cypriots maintain that Makarios, their religious and civic leader, is the only person authorized to negotiate. Makarios was deported last March when previous negotiations broke down on British demands that he condemn violent tactics in the union-with-Greece campaign.

Emergency Landing

PHILADELPHIA, July 15 (AP)—A DC-4 cargo plane made an emergency landing at Philadelphia's International Airport last night after its pilot radioed the left landing gear was out of commission. The pilot was Capt. E. Melendron, flying for the California Eastern Cargo Co. He landed safely.

HAUNTED BY HEAT, TAUNTED BY FLIES this large white polar bear spent most of the afternoon at Stokes Mill with his mouth open, eyes closed, head flicking swiftly now and then to scatter incessantly buzzing flies that dotted his body. Other animals in cages were: hippopotamus, black bear, two lions, two hyenas. Elephants stayed outside.

Circus Stranded At Stokes Mill

About an hour later a man in a sports shirt approached Perry. "Hey," he said. "What kind of hay you want? Alfalfa or timothy? Follow asked me and I said darned if I knew what an elephant wants." Perry chuckled and scratched his head. And then he said "Alfalfa" and the man laughed, too.

At 5 p.m. short, wiry Finley Gregory came back from "chewing down." Gregory is the elephant handler with the small group. He's been with King Bros. three years. He has a way, the men said, with the elephants. And, if you're an elephant handler you've got to have it.

Dip Trunks

Aided by two other men Finley Gregory led the three elephants down to the bank of Broadheads Creek. There, with the pure water swirling around their huge feet, they dipped their trunks beneath the surface and curved them upward and filled their enormous gaping mouths.

"The crowd followed them. Children clustered beside the bank watching each small move the mammoth animals made. Dozens of cameras made their appearance. It was the first time in history—so far as anyone knew—that Stokes Mill had served as a fountain for such giants.

Then the watering was over. Gregory and his men turned the animals around to walk them back to their chains and leg manacles beside one of the trucks.

The children turned, too, some of them abruptly as a hurried mother's hand jerked them around, bound for home and the general cleanup of the face and hands—and supper in the cool early part of the day. There is nothing quite so heavy as an elephant's walk. And in the trudging pace of the King Bros. giants there was the echo of melancholy. Whether the laughing children and their benevolent elders could see it or not, the past was dying on their own doorsteps.

Somewhat the circus was a mammoth, big-tented part of America's middle years. In every small town in the country children grew up listening to the cry of circus animals in the sudden warmth of a summer morning. And only a few of us can say we have no nostalgia for sawdust inside a wooden ring where animals danced miraculously to the cracking of a lash.

One of the men in the stranded

'Yankee Rebels' Gain Top Honors In Bangor Program

BANGOR—Some 3,000 spectators watched the "Yankee Rebels" of Baltimore, Md., take top honors in the second annual "Serenade in Brass" drum and bugle corps competition at Bangor Memorial Park Saturday night.

Change

So there you are. We've progressed beyond the three-ring-circus in our own backyards where the neighborhood kids could struggle to find a few pennies or a free way under the tent flap. Now there's a big screen in the living room and a program called "Big Top" that takes place in a neat, clean, air-conditioned studio or a nice clean barn and the sadness of it all is that the sawdust is confetti.

The death of a circus comes slowly. It appeared last night that King Bros. would even have a chance to fade away in small communities up and down the seaboard before the brothers get those bankruptcy proceedings filed.

There was little sentiment in the quarters at Stokes Mill yesterday. Most of the men were tired. So were the animals. Most of them had an urge to get back to Macon and get it over with.

If you were looking for glamor, it was present only in a child's eye peering through a barred cage at the fly-specked hippopotamus or the king of the beasts lying in his pened-in domestic summertime stupor.

It was a sad commentary on the world at large that one of these days young children cease to scamper about at the mention of the word "circus."

A world in which, for all we know, the elephant will grow old and extinct and you'll never see a

It was the third consecutive time in the last few weeks that the Rebels defeated the "Connecticut Yankees" of Stratford, Conn., former national champions in the interstate circuit of American Legion championship drum and bugle corps competition.

Third Place

"The Skyliners" of New York City placed third in the Bangor competition, with the "Colonials" of Morristown, N. J., finishing fourth, and the "Ambassadors" of Newburgh, N. Y., coming in fifth.

One of the sponsoring organizations, the "Yellow Jackets" of the Emlyn H. Evans Post, Bangor, gave an exhibition following the contests. The local group will compete in the state Legion contests in Philadelphia on Friday.

The three companies of the Bangor Fire Department were co-sponsors of the affair with the local American Legion post.

Stroudsburg Native Wins Promotion

A STROUDSBURG native has been promoted to assistant district manager of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. at Williamsport. He is Arthur F. ("Tim") Everitt Jr., now a resident of Lehighton. Everitt was named to succeed Macalady as assistant to T. R. Frye, district manager at Williamsport. Macalady was transferred to Shamokin, the PP&L announced.

Everitt is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Everitt, of Stroudsburg. He and his wife, the former Katherine Townsend, of Stroudsburg, are the parents of a daughter, Barbara, wife of Linwood Boyer of Houston, Tex.

Chief Clerk

Everitt, who took over his new position last week, had served as district chief clerk of the Lehigh district since Nov. 19, 1951.

He was first employed as a clerk and meter reader for the Lehigh Electric Light and Power Co. in 1921. He was named cashier in 1927 and was promoted to assistant district manager, Lehighton, in 1930.

When the Lehighton and Mauch Chunk districts were combined in 1948, he was named district clerk at Mauch Chunk.

Everitt is a past exalted ruler of Lehigh Lodge 1284 (BPOE), and a past president of Northeast District Elks.

He is a member and former officer of the Lehigh American Legion Post, Lehigh Fire Co. No. 1, Fraternal Order of Orioles, Grace Lutheran Church, Lehighton, and has been active in Red Cross, Civil Defense and other civic affairs.

Chico Marx

Chico Marx To Star In 'Fifth Season'

MOUNTAINHOME—"The Fifth Season," a farcical view of the wholesale garment manufacturing business in New York, opens at Pocono Playhouse.

Starred in the comedy will be Chico Marx, one of the "Four Marx Brothers." Chico was the piano-playing, Italian-dialect comedian of the group. Following the break-up of the group, he returned to his original field, the personal appearance, and established himself again as a great success doing solo work.

Story

According to Rowena Stevens, playhouse producer-manager, "Fifth Season" is a "farce at heart, despite occasional scenes of tenderness and pathos. The wholesale firm of Pincus-Goodwin is at a low point until the partners suddenly sell their whole line to a buyer who is susceptible to the lush models they have borrowed. While they desperately try to raise cash and finally get the best of their customer, their personal lives get snarled. Supersalesman Goodwin almost loses his wife and son when he detours into the arms of a nearby blonde. Pincus, production genius of the outfit, almost loses his girl through his habit of taking blame for other people."

The play continues through Saturday night with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. Tickets may be obtained by calling Cresco 3541, the Playhouse boxoffice.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H. At your drugist. Money back guarantee.

Three-Car Crash On Main St.

THREE persons were examined at General Hospital yesterday afternoon following a three-car pile-up in front of the Sunoco service station near the intersection of Ninth and Main Sts.

Borough Police identified the motorists involved as Frank Grossi, 36, of Paterson, N. J.; George Goula, 48, of Avoca, RD. 2, and a Mr. Eckley, 56, of Wilkes-Barre.

Traveling East

All three cars were traveling east on Main St., when the Eckley car slammed into Goula's 1953 sedan, pushing it into Grossi's auto, police said.

Police estimated damage to the Goula and Eckley vehicles at some $500. No damage apparently was caused to the Grossi auto.

Goula, his wife, Margaret, 34, and their five-year-old son, Robert, were examined at the hospital. All three were later discharged.

Officer William Dwyer investigated the mishap.

West Germany Reelects Leader

MUNICH, Germany, July 15 (AP)—

The West German Socialist party today re-elected Erich Ollenhauer as its leader in the campaign to unseat Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in next year's general election.

The 55-year-old former salesman, as chairman of the second largest party in West Germany, is the biggest political rival of the 80-year-old Chancellor.

Hardly an hour goes by that someone doesn't call for the weather forecast. Of course, we at the station are more than happy to be able to include this information in what we like to consider our public services. You're invited to call WVPO anytime we're on the air for the weather.

You then can post the reports at an outlook or any other data you might desire. As was pointed out here before, weather situations change quite often during the course of only one day. United Press and the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport supply us with at least four forecasts throughout the day.

Now, we suggest that you set your dial at 840 to hear these late reports at the end of each hourly newscast or at the station identification on the half hour. Naturally there are times when a person can't get to the radio for this information and, for that reason, we hope you will call us at 1101.

We'd like to go a step further, too. A few establishments in the Poconos make it a habit to contact us in the morning for late news and a weather forecast. Anyone who, for instance, runs a restaurant or operates a resort might find this an additional service for his guests.

Van Why To Depart For Arctic Region

SEATTLE, July 16—Army Pvt. Chester H. Van Why, son of Mrs. Edna V. Palmer, 113 Myrtle St., Stroudsburg, Pa., is scheduled to depart from Seattle this month for the Arctic to take part in "Project 572-West."

The project will carry supplies and equipment to distant early warning (DEW) radar stations in the northern regions of Alaska and Canada. Because of ice and weather conditions, the DEW bases can be re-supplied only during the short Arctic summer.

Crewman

Van Why is a harbor craft crewman in the 560th Transportation Company. The unit is expected to return to its home station at Fort Eustis, Va., in October.

Van Why entered the Army in January 1955 and received basic training at Fort Dix, N. J.

The 21-year-old soldier was graduated from Girard College High School, Philadelphia, in 1952. He was formerly employed by the Hughes Printing Press Co., East Stroudsburg.

Education Plan Of Future Provides Incentive For Brighter Youngsters

Too often, reluctance to change traditions or institutions blinds us to sorely needed improvements. That is why the statement by Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Pennsylvania's new superintendent of public instruction, about a new state trend in education comes as a welcome surprise.

In discussing the problem of bright students, who feel held back under the current school system, the educator outlined an immediate and a future plan that might alleviate the situation.

His department hopes to extend the number of additional courses and special classes available to honor students at the high school level. Without isolating them entirely from the other students and without taking them out of their age group, these bright students will be given a chance to do advanced work. In fact, Dr. Boehm expressed the hope that these pupils might be able to complete their first year of college work while still in high school.

Concentrating at first on mathematics and science, these youngsters would get a good jump in adjusting to the college level of work. By encouraging them in science and engineering fields, this program would help not only the students but the nation as well.

The long range part of the program calls for eventual change of the elementary school system from rigid annual grading to two three-year terms. Teachers could stay with the children for longer periods of time and do a more effective teaching job, knowing their aptitudes and weaknesses. Brighter students could move ahead in their work while the slower pupils could take the necessary time with their weaker subjects without the stigma of "failing" or the futility of moving on to more difficult work before being ready for it.

Dr. Boehm admits that this latter plan will take from 25 to 30 years to put into operation. It will not be an overnight transition, but anything of lasting merit rarely is. Some experiments along these lines already have been carried out in certain Pennsylvania schools.

In an age when the phrase "progressive education" often brings mixed reactions to the minds of many parents, it is comforting to note that these suggestions for bringing progress to our state school program have good, old fashioned common sense behind them.

Postal Rate Increase Would Help Department Earn Way Out Of Red

Senators say they are receiving practically no mail from the general public about the legislation to increase postal rates. They are hearing only from publishers and other business firms whose postage bills will be increased if the bill is passed.

But it would be wrong to assume the taxpayers don't care whether the Post Office Department pays its way. Various polls show a substantial majority does believe the department should pay its way, and that those who use the mails—not the taxpayers as a whole—should pay the cost.

The part of the rate increase that would affect the general public is the one cent rise in letter postage. Since this would cost most families less than $2 a year, it hardly is surprising few people are writing their senators to oppose it.

But it is not hard to imagine what any taxpayer's answer would be if he were asked whether he wants his taxes to go on subsidizing mail service for business establishments. (They account for 75 per cent of the postal patronage even at the subsidized rates.)

That is the issue. And it is such a simple one that it should take the Senate little time to face up to it.

We hope the committee hearings on the proposal, which start Tuesday, will be expedited to permit the Senate to put this burden where it belongs, and start the Post Office Department on its way out of the red.

George Sokolsky Says...

Red China Declared Opposition To U. N. By Its Intervention In Korean War

Although George Washington did say in his Farewell Address that the United States would avoid entangling alliances with European countries, it is historically incorrect to say that the United States, for 100 or 150 years of its history, was always neutral.

The fact of the situation is that quite early in our history (1823), the Monroe Doctrine was unilaterally enunciated at the suggestion and with the blessing of the British government, proclaiming the American continent closed to further European colonization. It was an ideological assertion of continental independence. Prior to that we went to war with Great Britain (1812) over freedom of the seas and we got into a snarl with France during the French Revolution over the attempted infiltration of Citizen Genet. Subsequently Thomas Jefferson bought the French possessions on the North American continent which deal went by the name of the Louisiana Purchase.

In these activities, the United States was closely associated with British policy, the two nations becoming cooperative after the War of 1812, although British policy during the War Between the States was dubious from the Northern standpoint and unsatisfactory from the Southern. Had the British provided the South with arms and food in exchange for cotton, it is possible that the outcome of that war might have been different.

The John Hay "Open Door Policy," with regard to China, clearly of British inspiration, was not a neutral act at all as it was anti-Russian and designed to lessen Russian influence in Manchuria where the Czar was supported by France and Germany. Similarly, at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Theodore Roosevelt intervened between Japan and Russia, favoring Japan, as Woodrow Wilson did at Versailles when the Shantung clauses of the Paris Treaty were considered after World War I.

This, of course, is a summary and an over-simplification, but the inference that neutrality is morally justified in a contest between the United States and Soviet Russia on the basis of early American history is unfounded in fact. How any nation can be a member of the United Nations and remain neutral after the Korean War requires more explanation than has yet appeared anywhere.

John Foster Dulles has raised this point very emphatically and calls attention to the fact that the United Nations Charter clearly opposes the interposition of one nation in the affairs of another as Soviet Russia and Red China have interposed in the affairs of many nations. Dulles said, referring to the prohibition on interposition in the Monroe Doctrine:

"That principle has now been extended. Its broadest application is found in the United Nations Charter. But, because veto power makes United Nations action un dependable, many nations have made with each other treaties which embody the principle of the Monroe Doctrine. Within the last 10 years the United States, always acting in a bipartisan manner, has made such treaties with 42 countries of America, Europe and Asia.

"These treaties abolish, as between the parties, the principle of neutrality, which pretends that a nation can best gain safety for itself by being indifferent to the fate of others. This has increasingly become an obsolete conception and, except under very exceptional circumstances, it is an immoral and shortsighted conception."

That is a clear and indubitably accurate statement of the case and if it is not, then it is difficult to explain what the United States is doing in the United Nations at all. If that universal body is not guided by moral principles but is only concerned with pragmatic sanctions, then it cannot long exist because it will produce war among its members and will itself be killed by war. Surely the United States cannot long be a member of a body which recognizes that a nation excluded from it for whatever reason can succeed in shooting its way into it by whatever process.

This is really the issue over the question of seating Red China, that country not intervened in the Korean War, which the United Nations had made its war, there would have been little excuse for keeping that country out of the United Nations on the sole ground that it is a Communist country when so many Communist countries are members of that body. By its intervention in the Korean War, Red China declared its opposition to the United Nations and then held hostages to force its way into that body. This is a morally impossible position.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

What? No Pipe Organs!! It's nice to know when you have emerged from a subway battered and bruised that you have suffered de luxe. This is our deferred verdict on the new subway train that has everything but a built-in swimming pool, a Philharmonic concert, and a cocktail bar.

It can be the biggest thing since anesthesia. The high, ultra-cozy, semi-painless dream train had its debut in New York this week, proving it is not necessary to take your subway beating without smart designing. There is no reason a man should lose a gig with minimum comforts. Or that a woman should have to stand up without music. The public has suffered long and patiently in the all-steel underground chute-the-chutes, the main purpose of which seemed to be to perpetuate the American fighting spirit. Now comfort, style, temperament, and deep breathing are given consideration in a car that boasts air conditioning, deodorizing and germ filtering, the latter indicating the first filtered tip subway caboose. Pumped in music intrigues us most. What tune do you like when arguing in a crowded doorway, huh? Will it do any good for a doll to request "Dixie" to make some gent get to his feet and give her a seat? Do you mind the subway is giving you something from "The Hit Parade"? If your fellow passenger runs a sharp elbow through your torso will you overlook it if it's done to Beethoven or Brahms?

Personally we go for music with out anguish and hate getting slugged midway between an argument and a popular tune. Bound for the office by subway we like "Zing Go the Strings of My Vertebrae." "Twist Me Again." "Bewitched and Bewildered." "Pokes Get in My Eyes." "Take Me Out to the Maul Game." and "Seat Adeline." For the trip home we will settle for "Indian Shave Song." "In the Good Old Pummel Time." "Bruise in the Night." "I Get a Rib Out of You." "Lover, Come Back to Me." "You Gotta Have Heart" and that song from Guya and Dolls called "Buttons and Elbows."

Joy Comes With Welcome For One's Aging Parents

"It's my mother... she is coming to live with us... and well, it just won't work, that's all..." Or perhaps an aging father. A grandparent, even. The house is too small. The kitchen is too small—and well, Mama always was a great one for putting up preserves. She will be there all day long—in the way. You know how older people are—criticizing the way we bring up our children. Don't approve of drinking, and we are in the habit of a highball before dinner and not about to give it up. Old people need a lot of care, too, and well—my wife has enough to do. She has her clubs and her bridge lessons and her children, you know. And she has me, too—I want her to be free to step out, look after my clothes, mend my socks and cook my favorite dishes. We just can't reconcile ourselves to having Mother.

Houses today are small. Guest rooms, dining rooms have vanished with the wind of economy. People's hearts have become smaller too—with no space left to accommodate the old and often helpless mothers and dads whose lives draw slowly (too slowly?) to their end.

It is one thing to assess our lives in terms of dollars, cents and backaches. It is only reasonable to know how much we can do, to say firmly, "No more." Nothing is more disagreeable than enduring the presence of an outsider whose petulance and meddlesomeness poison the family group.

But — ah, there is another thing to consider. Those who have grown old sweetly, kindly and willingly; those who have made life a beautiful and cherished time; those who have lived fully and with keen interest for all and sundry person and place—they offer nothing but a blessing with their presence. Care, trouble, expense—indeed they cannot avoid presenting some of these. But laughter for the past, tolerance of the present, hope for the future—these they can contribute and share with those who assume their care.

We must work out our personal problems as best we can. I see some old folk living contentedly in homes away from home. And others pining away, neglected and forgot. But thank God I have seen the other, too—where Dad or Mother were brought home by beloved children to stay, not forever, but for as long as they lived. They have been made happy, and their happiness has brought the most treasured repayment to sons and daughters—just knowing what was the right and good thing to be done. And doing it with pleasure.

CUTIES

—By E. Simms Campbell

"Nothing makes him forget a passing fancy as quickly as something fancier."

Robert S. Allen Reports

Congress Adds Millions To Ike's Atomic Budget

Washington, July 15 — President Eisenhower is getting another huge chunk of money from Congress that he hasn't asked for.

This time it's $400,000,000 that's being added to the atomic budget.

The President asked for a total of $1,598,700,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission for the current fiscal year. The House Appropriations Subcommittee, which handles this budget, has secretly boosted it to $2,298,700,000.

The $400,000,000 increase is for the government to build a number of large nuclear reactors for the generation of electric power.

The President and Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss are vigorously opposed to this. But the legislation authorizing it, sponsored by Senator Albert Gore (D., Tenn.) has been approved by the Joint Atomic Committee with Republican support. House Republican Committee members joined the Democrats in voting for Gore's measure. Senate GOP Committee members abstained from voting either way.

In anticipation of Congress passing the Gore bill, Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee and a militant advocate of public power, has secured advance approval of the $400,000,000 needed to finance this legislation.

As soon as the latter is enacted, Cannon is set to produce the heavily-expanded atomic budget. In the meanwhile, he is keeping a tight rein on it. Congress cannot adjourn without providing funds for the supremely-essential Atomic Commission. And that is what Cannon is counting on to ensure consideration of the Gore bill, which the Administration is trying to scuttle.

Note: Cannon is both chairman of the full Appropriations Committee and its Public Works Subcommittee. The scrappy Missourian set up this Subcommittee at the Atomic Commission, Bonneville Power Administration, Bureau of Reclamation, civil functions of the Department of the Army, Southeastern Power Administration, Southwestern Power Administration and TVA. The party line-up on the Subcommittee is 8 Democrats, 6 Republicans.

Rough Going — The Subcommittee spent five days at the atomic budget, much of the time caustically grilling Commission Chairman Strauss.

During these long closed-door sessions, he was critically questioned by Republican and Democratic Committee members on whether the U.S. is falling behind Russia in nuclear developments. Numerous reports of this, from scientific and other sources, were put up to Strauss for explanation.

One report was a profusely illustrated article in the July 7 issue of BUSINESS WEEK, leading McGraw-Hill publication, stating: "Russia has the jump in nuclear research... The Soviet facilities.

according to touring team of U. S. physicists, turned out to be superior to any others in the world; and Soviet researchers, they say, are first-class."

Strauss vigorously denied the U. S. is lagging behind the Reds. This was hotly countered by Cannon, who at one point thundered, "The plain facts are that the Russians are getting the jump on us in atomic energy, and you know it. But you're too stubborn and high-handed to admit it. I tell you, you are impairing the national security."

In another heated exchange, Cannon accused Strauss of telling William Mitchell, AEC general counsel, what to say in reply to a question. Strauss angrily denied he was "prompting the witness."

"And I say you were," snapped Cannon. "Don't tell me you weren't, because I heard you. As you can see for yourself, I'm sitting less than ten feet from Mr. Mitchell and I heard exactly what you told him to say. This denial of yours is absurd and impertinent."

Representative Joe L. Evins (D., Tenn.) asked Strauss why he hadn't asked for funds "to accelerate nuclear power development, as the Gore bill proposes."

"We are opposed to that program," replied Strauss.

Note: A study by the staff of the Joint Committee estimates that by 1960, Russia will be producing 2,000,000 kilowatts of nuclear power. Britain 1,000,000 kilowatts, and the U. S. around 500,000 kilowatts. This report also states that most of the British and Soviet reactors are dual-purpose, capable of producing atomic weapons as well as electric power. Present Atomic Commission plans do not call for such reactors.

How It Happened — Governor Frank Clement owes his election as keynoter at the Democratic convention to a switch of two key votes.

National Chairman Paul Butler shifted to the 36-year-old Tennessee after first voting for Senator Robert Kerr, Okla.; and Pittsburgh's Mayor David Lawrence, Pennsylvania National Committeeman, did the same after backing Senator Hubert Humphrey, Minn.

The two Senators tied 5 to 5 on the first count, with Clement trailing with 2 votes. But on the second ballot, after the switching, the Tennessee was on top with 5, as against 4 for Humphrey and 3 for Kerr.

Insiders credit Lawrence with persuading Butler to shift to Clement instead of to Kerr.

The Oklahoma oilman was strenuously opposed by Lawrence on the ground of being a leading advocate of legislation taking control of natural gas from the Federal Power Commission. Kerr sponsored such a bill in 1951, which was passed by Congress but vetoed by President Truman.

Weatherman Too Fast For We Mortals

By Jim Riley

The toughest guy in the world to get along with is the weatherman.

Last year this time he had us in the midst of one of the worst droughts in the history of Monroe County.

This year he has been sending us plenty of rains, maybe even too much water.

Just proves that he's unpredictable and the real power in the world today.

He appears to delight in upsetting official weather predictions.

Oscar K. Stuckey, now a resident of Bushkill, will purchase a home in the N. 5th St. section of Stroudsburg in the very near future.

Stuckey was a resident of the Altoona area before moving to Monroe County.

Charley James, long time member of the Pocono Manor scenery, is making more than the usual number of trips to the shoemaker of lately.

Seems that Charley's dog likes to chew the insoles of his shoes.

Tom Beseker, Harry "Junior" Niering, Ronnie Martinell and Burdette Peechatka were on hand to see the New York Yankees lace the Cleveland Indians on Friday night, 10-0.

All are members of the Tannersville-Scotrun-Paradise section.

Pocono Township Volunteer Firemen are scheduled to launch their week-long carnival today.

They had the huge tent erected on Friday. Virtually the entire affair is under cover.

Rev. Arthur Henderson, regarded as one of the most learned men in the area, will enter the Union Printers Home, Colorado Springs, Colo., in the near future.

In addition to being a member of the clergy, Rev. Henderson worked for many years at Hughes Printing Co.

T. Manning "Cap" Curtis, well known resident of Stroudsburg, took time off from his many duties to see the Yankees and Indians in action on Thursday.

Elmer "Lefty" Goucher, 4th St. East Stroudsburg, has returned from a week's vacation with his family in the Cape Cod section of Massachusetts.

Goucher is night foreman of the composing room at The Daily Record.

Harold Dennis, a member of the night staff at the East Stroudsburg railroad station, has gained the reputation of always helping a guy in need—at least as often as possible.

Rochester Youth Drowns In Wallenpaupack

Seven Divers Search For Missing Body

LAKEVILLE — Seven volunteer divers continued an unsuccessful search yesterday for the body of Alan Kingslake, 17, of Rochester, N. Y., who was drowned Saturday in Lake Wallenpaupack.

The victim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Kingslake, lost his life during a swimming contest at Camp Pocono on the Wayne County side of the lake.

Alan dove into the water about 5 p. m., Saturday, and failed to come up after several minutes, Honesdale State Police disclosed. The youth had the reputation of being an able swimmer.

Darkness

The divers equipped with aqua-lungs went into the water Saturday night. They continued their search until darkness fell last night. However, they still were unable to locate the body in water ranging in depth up to 20 feet in that area. The volunteers will continue their work this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingslake visited the camp yesterday, and returned to New York State last night, State Police said.

Troopers identified the divers as Thomas O'Brien, Wilkes-Barre; Stephen Klesin, Stanley, Pa.; both of Dunmore; Paul Skibinski, Charles Schick, both of Scranton; Vincent Guccini and Max Munzel, both of Hawley.

Close Games Mark Chess

JOHN M. PRICE, president of the Stroudsburg Chess Club, took on Harold James and William P. Deering at the Thursday night session in his Southside office. James defeated the host after a long struggle, in which the advantage swung back and forth. The club president beat Deering decisively.

Deering and John Erickson, both natives of Gloucester, Mass., devoted most of the meeting to two games, the former taking the first and Erickson the second. Playing was nip and tuck all the way.

Challenge

Louis Mondelle challenged Joseph Kushner, the club champion and came well within sight of victory, forcing the champ to extend himself all the way. In the end, however, Kushner rallied and bore off the palm. The champ also beat Earle Weiss, one of the club's top players.

James engaged A. J. Vlossak, Mount Pocono, taking three games to one for the latter.

Vlossak and Sidney Kushner son of the club champion had two well sustained engagements early in the meeting. Vlossak won one but the other was a tie.

State Officials To Attend Chamber Of Commerce Lunch

STATE SECRETARY OF COMMERCE William R. Davlin and Francis A. Pitkin, state director of community development, will be guests of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel at 12:10 p.m. tomorrow.

Pitkin will address the gathering on the topic, "Local Powers For Community and Regional Improvement."

Pitkin is well known in this region. He has been a member of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin (Incodel) since 1937 and its chairman since 1948. He is also vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation.

He first became associated with Pennsylvania's State government in 1934 as assistant director of the State Planning Board. He continued as executive director of the board until May 1, 1955, when he became director of the newly created bureau of Community Development in the Department of Commerce.

Publication

As Planning Board director, Pitkin supervised the publication of a series of authoritative bulletins on planning and zoning powers and procedures. These are used as guides in the development of planning and zoning programs by almost all planning and zoning commissions, planning consultants and technicians in Pennsylvania.

As community development director, he is continuing to give consulting and advisory service to municipalities in developing their planning, zoning and urban redevelopment programs. His programs, he said, are based on the premise that a sound community improvement program is a prerequisite to industrial development.

Pitkin is a past president of the American Society of Planning Officials and has served two terms as president of the National Association of State Planning and Development Agencies. He is also a member of the American Institute of Planners and the American Planning and Civic Association. He is a contributing editor of the latter's publication, "Planning and Civic Comment."

Since 1948, he has been a member of the Pennsylvania Public Service Institute Board and has served as its chairman. Pitkin also is a director of both the Pennsylvania Forestry Association and a national director of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

Groner To Lead Group

UNIVERSITY PARK, July 15 — Earl Groner, superintendent of the Stroudsburg Borough Schools, has been chosen to lead a seminar group during the 34th annual Superintendents and Principals Conference meeting July 23-26 at the Pennsylvania State University.

Over 700 Pennsylvania school administrators will attend the conference, under the theme "Citizenship of 1975—Today's Children and Youth."

'Oddities' Mark News During Week

NEW YORK, July 15 — While the young Duke of Kent wore plaid pants with a long-tailed morning coat, the Maharajah of Jaipur was complaining he was down to his last four elephants and Sicilian fans boycotted movies more than 10 years old.

In short, the world last week was rocking along pretty much as usual.

To take up royalty first: The duke made his sartorial sensation at a London wedding and got acclaimed for creating a new style. London's leading arbiter of men's styles said, "It shows originality, but still keeps to the principles of formality."

Hard Time

While the duke had it all his way with the plaid pants, British army girls were having a hard time trying to escape having to wear khaki pants. Calling them "baggy bloomers," the girls protested government issue underwear and asked for a pantie allowance. They said the bloomers were designed for World War I and nobody had changed them since. While most people generally seemed sympathetic, the treasury said the government couldn't afford it.

To return to royalty: The Maharajah wasn't broke, but his once fabulous income was only $335,000 a year under new Indian law. He said in London last week his string of 70 elephants was down to four and he had to turn one of his remaining palaces into a hotel. The Sicilian boycott of movies more than a decade in vintage happened in Ribera. Wait until they get television. They'll vendetta all over the place.

Red Proposal On Atoms Old Ring

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Foreign News Analyst

THE NEW Soviet proposal on atomic energy has a familiar ring. It's an old siren song with a new twist.

The Russians have proposed a European organization to control peaceful uses of atomic energy. This organization would include Communist and non-Communist nations, and both the United States and the Soviet Union would participate. It would replace a West European organization now being developed under the name of Euratom.

This is suspiciously like another Soviet attempt to get a Russian boot in the door of Western Europe and contribute to the swifter disintegration of western alliances, including the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Russians tried it before, with a different approach, but method and the principle were the same.

That was when the Russians proposed an all-European security organization, which would include both Communist and non-Communist states and would provide for the participation of the United States.

Organization

The security organization, argued the Russians, would make such bloc arrangements as the Warsaw pact and NATO unnecessary. It was a logical-sounding argument—except that the Russians had hastily hammered together the Warsaw Pact and its unified Communist command arrangement to provide them with something to give up in exchange for the all-European security arrangement. It made little difference to the West whether a formal pact linked the Communist nations—they all would remain under Soviet control anyway.

And in an all-European atom pact, all the Communist nations would likewise remain under Moscow control.

As they did in the case of the European security organization, the Russians had something to offer in their atomic proposal. Only last March the Russians announced an organization for atomic research among the Communist countries. Just as NATO would become unnecessary under an all-European arrangement, so would EURATOM.

The attack is not upon NATO alone. Russian strategy has always hit hard at any Western arrangement which promised future positive results. Euratom is such a target.

The Russians have exhibited a great deal of fear in the past that Western alignments would bring about such a degree of economic stability in the West that revolutionary situations would disappear, to the disadvantage of world communism. They thus are working on the old principle: if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

Like their other proposals, such as the prohibition of atomic weapons and disarmament, the atom proposal may sound logical and attractive to Europeans.

Five Hurt In Accident On Ninth St.

FIVE PERSONS were treated at General Hospital yesterday for injuries received when their car crashed into a utility pole on N. Ninth St. in Stroudsburg.

Borough Police said the accident occurred at 2:25 a.m. when a 1955 sedan, operated by Mrs. Frances Cornell, 41, of Staten Island, N. Y., rammed into a Bell Telephone pole across from 111 N. Ninth St.

Mrs. Cornell was quoted by police as saying the car suddenly pulled to the right. The brakes failed to hold when she attempted to bring the auto to a halt, police added.

Private Cars

Brought to the hospital in private cars were Mrs. Cornell; her husband, Bernard, also 41; Richard Theimer, 34, of Staten Island; his wife, Josephine, 33, and their seven-year-old son, Edward. All were later discharged.

Police said the Cornell's seven-month-old son, John, apparently escaped unharmed.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2,100. The pole had to be replaced.

Investigating officers were Russell Decker and Charles Allen.

Gartner' At Home' On 25 Anniversary

A steady stream of friends and neighbors called at 141 East Brown St., East Stroudsburg, yesterday to bring congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Gartner on their 25th wedding anniversary. They shared in the tiered wedding cake and inspected the Gartner's garden where new strawberry beds share honors with thriving tomato plants.

Not every one of those 25 years has been so peaceful for the Gartner's who were married in Sirobran, Hungary, in 1932. Mrs. Gartner, who had come to the United States with her parents as a small child, returned to her native Sirobran in 1930 for a visit. There she met and married the young mechanical engineer, Matthew Gartner.

Their lives prospered. Matthew opened up his own business. They had three sons, Helmut, Gerhard and Roland. Then came war and the advancing Communist armies. The Gartner's fled before them with the children, then very small, with a horse and wagon on the refugee-packed roads. Very often the bombardment was very close and the journey was a nightmare.

From country to country they passed seeking refuge until finally they reached the American zone of Germany and lived as best they could in the camps established for displaced persons. It wasn't easy in the camps, but they were free.

"Potatoes, we had for breakfast," Mr. Gartner recalled, "and without butter or fat those potatoes were fried in their own fat as we used to say."

It was in 1949 that they received their clearance to come to America and settled in Monroe County in a home secured for them by Ernest H. Wyckoff who also offered Mr. Gartner employment in the upholstery department, where he is still employed.

"Immediately the boys found friends," he said. "That was not so in many countries where they had to learn to fight to hold their place."

The family first lived in Hamilton Township, and they attended the Polk Valley one-room school. Since their mother had already prepared them in English, they quickly adapted to their studies and their schoolmates welcomed them warmly. Mr. Gartner, who speaks several languages besides Hungarian, at first studied right along with the boys to improve his English.

Now students at East Stroudsburg High School, the Gartner boys have found their places not only scholastically but also on the athletic fields.

The host of friends who yesterday called at the Gartner house gave proof that Mr. and Mrs. Gartner too are "at home."

Aunt Polly's Turn To Get Cards—In N. J. Hospital

Mrs. Lloyd Kintner of East Stroudsburg and Normandy Beach, N. J., underwent emergency surgery at the Point Pleasant Hospital, Point Pleasant, N. J., on Friday night. She came through the operation in good shape and is now recuperating at the hospital.

As "Aunt Polly," Mrs. Kintner remembers literally hundreds of birthdays and anniversaries among her acquaintances, who are now determined that she will, for once, be on the receiving end. Cards may be sent to the hospital or to her home, Box 174, Normandy Beach, where her daughter, Mrs. Vida McElwain is staying until her mother is out of the hospital.

Bernards Welcomed By Wesley Chapel

Over 50 members of Wesley Chapel Church and Sunday School attended a "Welcome Back" party for Rev. and Mrs. Leroy Bernards which was held at the Wesley Chapel social hall recently. A pot luck supper was served and the Bernards were presented with a gift.

The affair was sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the church. Following the supper WSCS committee meetings were held and a suggestion was made that a smorgasbord supper be held in August.

Wesley Chapel Picnic Planned

The annual picnic for the members and friends of Wesley Chapel Sunday School will be held at the Stroudsburg Playground on Saturday afternoon, July 28. There will be games and treats for the children.

Supper will be served at 5:30 and all persons attending will eat together at one large table. In the event of stormy weather, the picnic will be moved to the Wesley Chapel social hall. Members and friends are urged to attend.

Dames Of Malta

The Dames of Malta will meet Monday night at 8 for the final meeting until September since they will recess for August.

Jr. Crusaders Plan Picnic For August 17

Bartonville — The heavy downpour of rain at meeting time failed to keep members of the Junior Crusader group, sponsored by the Crusader Class of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School, away from their scheduled meeting and hot dog roast on Friday night, July 13.

Lee Frailey presided at the devotional and business sessions. Devotions opened with hymn singing. Mrs. Haviland Heller playing piano accompaniment. Haviland Heller gave the opening prayer. Chaplain Kathryn Cyphers read a portion of scripture and led in group prayer. Mr. Heller presented a Bible study on "The Predigal Son" and showed movies on that topic.

During the business meeting reports were given by John Field and Carl Cyphers. Plans were made to hold a picnic on the church lawn on August 17. All members are asked to contribute some food for the picnic supper and parents are invited to attend. Tentative supper hour was set at 6 p.m.

After the business session ended several of the older members of the group huddled under umbrellas and roasted hot dogs and marshmallows for the crowd. But before the social time ended the rain ceased falling and most of the children had a chance to have their turn at the outdoor fireplace.

Children attending were Sarah Jane Cyphers, Kathryn Cyphers, Joanne Dunbar, Nancy Frailey, Cheryl Starnier, Bonnie Edinger, Sharon Edinger, Kathryn Walters, Mary Ann Schrock, Eugene Leary, John Cyphers, Lee Frailey, John Field, Tommy Field, and James Possinger.

Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Haviland Heller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Mrs. Claude Cyphers and Mrs. Joseph Dunbar.

Class Presents Picture To The Bergstressers

Bartonville — Mrs. Florence Marsh presided when the Berean Class of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School met at St. John's parish house on Friday night, July 6. The meeting opened with responsive reading from the third chapter of the Book of John. Mrs. Floyd Cyphers, class teacher, led in prayer.

A brief business session was held. Mrs. Cyphers made a report for Mrs. Richard Metzger who was unable to attend. Mrs. Daisy Alliger was appointed to read the Scripture lesson at the August meeting which will be held at the parish house on August 3. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cyphers will be hosts.

Mrs. Cyphers announced that the farewell gift that the class had bought for Rev. and Mrs. John Bergstresser, a large painting, "Head Of Christ," by Warner Sallman, had been presented at the farewell supper at the Saylor'sburg fire house on July 2.

Refreshments were served by Elmer Marsh and Joseph Starnier. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Marsh, Mrs. Floyd Cyphers, Mrs. Thomas Hawkes, Mrs. Jack Hutton, Miss Katie Ann Hutton and Joseph Starnier.

Bake Sale July 28

Delaware Water Gap — The home-baked and home-cooked food sale to be sponsored by the Methodist Women this month will be held on Saturday, July 28, instead of July 21. It will be held on the lawn of Mrs. Nelson Lightner's home on Main Street and will feature baked beans, potato salad, cakes and pies.

Historical Pilgrims Visit Sites Of Ancient Forts

An ancient well in the middle of a busy parking lot, an octagonal blockhouse deep inside the Romanesque ruins of an abandoned cement mill, a spring where Benjamin Franklin and his detachment of what were once a string of frontier forts protecting this area from the Indian raids.

The Monroe County Historical Society summer pilgrimage on Saturday not only visited the places where the forts no longer stood, but were also informed by their guide, George Atwell Richardson, of Bethlehem, that even when the forts were standing, they were not forts in the modern meaning of the word.

Used as a shelter for settlers for the surrounding communities, and as headquarters for small detachments of soldiers, the forts were sometimes fortified farmhouses, sometimes log buildings surrounded by protective stockades.

Despite the apparent negative approach of the forts, the cavalcade found much to interest them. In their 100 mile trip which started by bus at 9:30 Saturday morning from the Stroud Union School, the bus, carrying 31 passengers, was followed by three cars carrying other historians.

Kresge Massacre

First stop was at the cemetery at Gilbert where the descendants of Conrad Kresge have erected a monument showing the first massacre of white settlers in this area. The tour then crossed the main highway and on Weir Hill above Gilbert stopped briefly to see the site of Fort Morris which stood along Pohopoco Creek, and was one of the larger forts in the county, established by Benjamin Franklin who had been charged with the responsibility for establishing the forts after the massacres which followed Braddock's defeat and the bitterness aroused by the Walking Purchase.

The Walking Purchase, starting from Philadelphia, ended somewhere near Parryville, where today's historians saw the great construction work now going on for the Parryville exchange for the Northeast Turnpike extension.

Franklin's Own

In Weissport, the group stopped to visit a well, now in the middle of a parking lot, which had once stood within the palisades surrounding Fort Allen, one of the major forts, and one which had been erected under the personal supervision of Benjamin Franklin. Richardson explained that Franklin in his Autobiography had not only described the fort in detail, but also included many of the incidents surrounding its construction.

The fort measured 175 by 50 feet, and its armament included two swivel guns. The stockades were made of logs one foot in diameter and 15 feet long. Sunk in the ground to a depth of three feet, they formed a palisade 12 feet high with a platform for the riflemen. The lumber was brought from a sawmill at Slatining where a sawmill is still operating at the same location, Richardson said.

Blockhouse Stands

There was no need for a description of Wilson's Fort, the next stop of the group. The octagonal blockhouse still stands in a perfect state of preservation. In a remote corner of the Universal Atlas Cement Co., near

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Historical pilgrimages set my mind to work in two directions, not only trying to reconstruct how things must have looked back when, but also trying to project how the present will look to some future historians 200 years from now.

Certainly such historians should have a field day at that old abandoned cement mill—the ruined aqueducts, the crumbling cement towers, the many windowed buildings with trees growing inside, which even now are as impressive, in their ways, as the ruins of Rome.

I think everyone on the historical bus, wending its incongruous way through the ruins, was imagining them as the setting for some fantastic plot of contraband, or counterfeiting, or science fiction.

Beyond the ruins, was the Wilson blockhouse, one of the really impressive points of the tour. The blockhouse also created its own atmosphere, making your scalp tingle with the feeling that Indians were even now creeping up through the shrubbery.

Incidentally, a lot of that shrubbery was poison ivy, as Ora Levering discovered to her horror after she was ankle-deep in the stuff, to which she is very allergic. Ever resourceful, Mrs. Levering had the bus stop at the first general store they came to, and while the rest of the passengers watched in bewilderment, she ran in and came out with some yellow naphtha soap for her ankles.

When, a few hundred yards down the road, the bus stopped again to look in the general direction of a spring from which Benjamin Franklin was supposed to have drunk on his way from Bethlehem, I couldn't help thinking how amused he would have been to see us.

Such a prosaic thing it must have seemed that January long ago, stopping along the roadside to get a drink. Certainly nothing that history would take note of. But history does strange things, and it may be that 200 years from now they may stop to gawk at the place where Mrs. Levering stopped to get her naphtha soap.

Oh, I tell you, Einstein may have been quite clear in his understanding of the relativity of time and space and the fourth dimension, but I'll bet even he would get confused by the way they get mixed up together in my head during a historical bus ride.

Sgt. and Mrs. Richard Charles London

Sgt. London Is Married In Florida

The Evangel Temple, Miami, Florida, was the scene of a candlelight, double ring ceremony June 21, uniting Miss Donna Carol Meadows and Sgt. Richard Charles London. The wedding, which took place at 6:45 p.m. was officiated by Rev. J. Billy McIntosh. Damian Dart, soprano soloist, sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because" before the ceremony. She was accompanied by Zola Jean Hogsett, organist.

The bride was dressed in a cotton satin street length dress of white fagoting with Italian neckline, long torso and full skirt. Tiny bows with rhinestone buckles added interest to the neckline and front hem. Her three-quarter-length veil flowed from her small white lace hat. Tiny teardrop earrings of rhinestones, a gift of the bridegroom, were the bride's only jewelry. Given in marriage by her stepfather, Thompson A. Boyd, the bride carried a white prayer book adorned by a white orchid.

Miss Josephine Cameron, the bride's maid of honor, was attired in a cotton satin dress of pink fagoting designed in princess style with a cowl neckline. Wearing small ruffled white gloves, she carried a bouquet of tinted blue carnations. A scalloped shoulder length veil fell from her crown of pink flowers. Her only jewelry were pearl earrings and necklace of matching color.

Miss Betty Sue Thompson, bridesmaid, carried a bouquet of tinted pink carnations, and wore a cotton satin dress of blue fagoting, matching the maid-of-honor's attire in design. Her crown was of blue flowers with pearl earrings and necklace of matching color.

The bridegroom was attended by Kenneth Murphy, serving as best man, and Cpl. Robert Junjak, usher.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, immediately following the ceremony. After a wedding to the upper coast of Florida, the couple will reside at 532 N. W. 105th Street, Miami.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thompson A. Boyd of Miami and J. C. Meadows of Winfield, West Virginia. She is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Gentry of Nitro. A native of Charleston, she was graduated from Nitro High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society and was employed by American Viscose there. At present she is employed by the Commercial Bank of Miami.

Sgt. London is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George London of RD 3, East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania. He was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School. He enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps in 1953 and is now a projectionist at the Marine Base at Opa Locka, Florida.

Stroudsburg LL Players See Thriller

AN EXCITING, extra-inning game was the reward for more than a hundred Stroudsburg Little League players, their managers and several officers who traveled to New York in two buses Saturday to see the Yankees meet the Cleveland Indians.

New York won the thriller, 5-4, in the tenth inning. The game was witnessed by 31,144 fans, including a paid attendance of nearly 23,000.

Tickets for the local contingent were purchased by the Little League and its Ladies' Auxiliary. They also paid for the transportation and gave each boy a dollar to spend for food.

Fifth Trip

The trip was the fifth to a major league game since the Little League was organized in Stroudsburg. It was under the direction of William D. Hawn, player agent, and Ray Walters, vice president.

The Yankees trailed most of the game, chiefly on the basis of a two-run homer by Gene Woodling, Cleveland left fielder. Mickey Mantle closed the gap with his 30th home run of the year, bettering Babe Ruth's record pace.

New York went ahead, 4-3, in the eighth on a series of singles, then was forced into an extra inning when Sam Mele tied the score in the ninth on a pinch-hit homer.

Unexpected Thrill

The Little Leaguers received an unexpected thrill in the tenth when aging Bobbie Feller, the fireball pitcher who has been used sparingly of late, came in to relieve Don Mossi with the bases loaded with Yanks. He tossed a ball to Billy Martin, then fired one over the middle which the Yankee second baseman belted over second base to drive home the winning run.

Babe Is Seen Doing Better Than Expected

GALVESTON, Tex., July 15 (AP)—The doctors of Babe Zaharias, famous woman golfer, said today she is responding very well to an operation to relieve cancer pains and "is doing better than anticipated."

"She has some weakness in her legs, but it is expected that this condition will improve as the days pass," a bulletin issued by John Sealey Hospital said.

"There are no complications and she has no pain except minor pain at the site of the operation. She rested well last night and is relaxed this morning," the bulletin said.

More Liquid

Mrs. Zaharias is taking more liquid nourishment — water, tea and broth — by mouth. She underwent an operation Friday to sever some spinal sensory nerves that would relieve the extreme pains in her legs caused by the inroads of cancer which first struck her in 1953.

Her doctors said the operation was a success from an anatomical standpoint because she can move her legs now without the previously suffered pains.

Maurice Richard of the Montreal Canadiens has made the National Hockey League all-star first or second team 13 seasons in succession.

Pastrano, McBride Fight Tops Week's Heavy-Dominated Card

By JACK HAND

The Associated Press

HEAVYWEIGHTS dominate the boxing program this mid-July week with high-ranked Willie Pastrano of New Orleans meeting substitute Archie McBride of Trenton, N. J., in a Wednesday match at Chicago Stadium.

Johnny Holman, the No. 7 heavyweight in the latest Ring ratings, had to pull out of the match because of an infected cyst over his left eye. When the Illinois Athletic Commission ruled out Holman, the International Boxing Club called on McBride to sub.

Pastrano, only 20, is looking ahead to 1957 and the winner of the proposed September match between Archie Moore and Floyd Patterson for Rocky Marciano's vacated title. There are those who think Pastrano doesn't pack the punch to be a heavyweight champ but he is ranked No. 5 in Ring and about the same in the National Boxing Assn. ratings.

Unbeaten since late 1953, with only two draws in a streak of 18 bouts, the clever youngster from New Orleans shows great promise. In his last start he whipped Chuck Spieser in 10 rounds, May 30, weighing 182½ pounds.

McBride, 27, has been in with the best and frequently beaten. He did upset Bob Satterfield last year and gave Hurricane Jackson a real battle before he dropped the decision.

The week's bouts:
Monday: At New York (St. Nicholas Arena), Wayne Beithe, New York, vs. Jimmy Slade, New York, heavies, 10; at Cardiff, Wales, Pat Supple, Montreal, vs. Dal Power, Wales, bantams, 15.

Tuesday: At Bridgeport, Conn., Paddy DeMarco, Brooklyn, vs. Irish Pat Mallane, Union City, N. J., lights, 10; at Houston, Rinz Nocere, Brooklyn, vs. Randy Sandy, New York, middles.

Wednesday: At Chicago Stadium, Archie McBride, Trenton, N. J., vs. Willie Pastrano, New Orleans, heavies, 10.

Thursday: At Los Angeles, Rudy Garcia, Los Angeles, vs. Julian Velasquez, Los Angeles, feathers, 10; at Philadelphia, Calvin Smith, Philadelphia, vs. George Collins, New York, lights, 8.

Friday: At New York (Madison Square), Tony Anthony, New York, vs. Tony Johnson, New York, light heavies, 10; at Moncton, Canada, Tinkar Picet, Dorchester, Mass. vs. Vyron Durelle, Baie St. Anne, N. B., lights, 10.

Saturday: At Hollywood, Calif., Young Jack Johnson, Los Angeles, vs. Roger Rischer, Oakland, heavies, 12.

Babe Ruth All-Star Game Scheduled For Giffels Today

STROUDSBURG - Barrett Babe Ruth League All-Stars will play in an on-postponed District Two sudden-death elimination runoff game against Valley All-Stars of Hazleton today at Gordon Giffels Field. Game time is 6 p.m.

The tilt was to be played last Friday at Giffels but was switched to today because of inclement weather.

To Meet Bangor

The winner of today's classic will take on the Bangor Babe Ruth League All-Stars at Bangor's Memorial Stadium Wednesday, starting at 6 p.m. for the District

Two Babe Ruth championship.

Tickets for today's tilt at Giffels Field will cost 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

From 5 Teams

The Stroudsburg-Barrett All-Star roster is made up of players from Ronson, Worthington Mower, Line Material, Engine Works and International Boiler Works teams of the area's Babe Ruth circuit.

The S-B nine is expected to start off with Paul Frailey on the mound and Bob Stine behind the plate. The remainder of the locals starting lineup is still uncertain.

Hungarian Sets New World Marks

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 15 (AP)—Hungary's Sandor Iharos, returning to competition after a rest and a trip to Australia, bettered two more world records today in the 10,000 meters and 6-mile distances.

He ran the 10,000 meters in 28 minutes, 42.8 seconds and 6 miles in 27:43.8, topping the marks established by Czechoslovakia's Olympic triple medalist, Emil Zatopek. Zatopek's time for 10,000 meters was 28:54.2 and for the 6 miles, 27:59.2.

Iharos' performances were made during the two-day Budapest track and field meet, ending today.

In-plant technical courses, management and supervisory programs, a unique Family Benefit plan, are just some of the many things General Electric is doing to attract and keep the caliber of person we want to grow with us.

Requirements: 2 years technical school or equivalent, and experience which includes at least 3 years of design drafting related to any one of the following:

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT
AIRCRAFT INSTRUMENTS
MECHANICAL AND HYDRAULIC DEVICES
INTRICATE MECHANISMS

You will make original design layouts, furnish technical support to engineers and guide detailers.

Interviews any evening or Saturday.
Drive over, and bring the family along.

For an appointment, call:

CD Workers To Join In National Alert

MONROE County Civil Defense workers will join thousands throughout the United States Friday in staging a third nationwide C-D test, "Operation Alert 1956," which will begin with an all-out air attack.

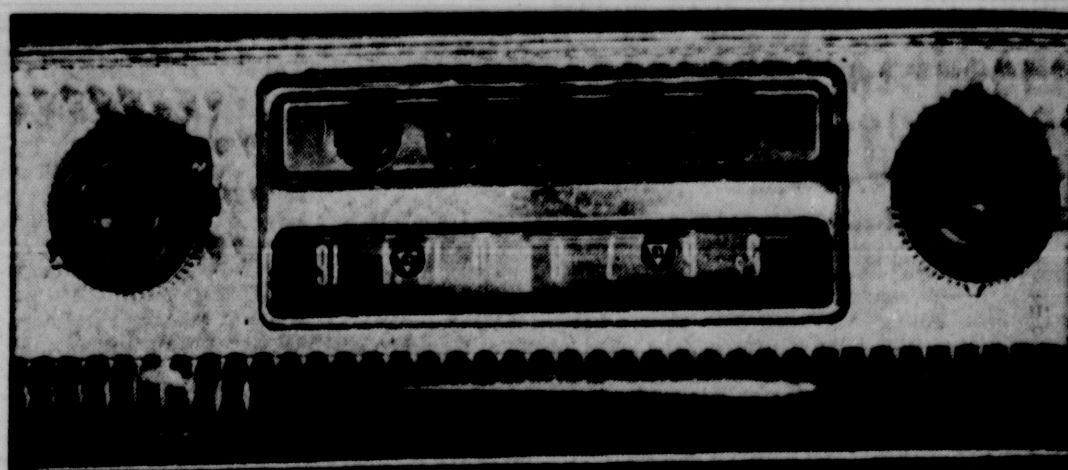

Canada plans to join the U. S. and its territories and possessions in this operation, according to Paul M. Crawn, executive C-D director for the county.

Local workers will swing into action at 11:04 a.m., when the "Yellow" warning is signaled. However, the public will also be asked to take part when the "Red" warning is transmitted at 1:40 p.m.

Between 1:40 and 1:50 p.m., residents will be asked to "duck and take cover."

Persons at home are asked to extinguish open flames and draw shades to guard against flying glass. Those on the street when the "Red" warning is sent will be asked to seek shelter immediately in the nearest substantial building.

All private and commercial vehicles will be pulled to the curb. Drivers will be instructed to shut off their motors and turn on the parking lights. Occupants will either get out and take cover in a nearby building, or crouch or lie down in the vehicle. Monroe County will have official observers appointed for this test. Judge Fred W. Davis, county C-D director, and Roderick MacLeod, chief photographer of The Daily Record, will look over the situation from a plane piloted by Hal Hamblin, county aviation coordinator.

CONELRAD CAR RADIO dial marked at 640 and 1240 kilocycles for any emergency will come in handy when all radio stations go off the air at 4 p.m. on July 20, and then some return to broadcast special civil defense material on these frequencies as part of Operation Alert, 1956. The 15-minute nationwide Conelrad test, first of its kind, will test radio stations' ability to switch to the Conelrad system of broadcasting in an actual attack so that emergency instructions could be radioed to the public without guiding enemy bombers to their targets. Civil defense authorities are hoping the public will mark their radios for future emergencies.

The Conelrad feature of the test will be staged between 4:40 p.m. During this period, every radio and TV station in the United States will suspend regular programs and will broadcast either on 640 or 1240 kilocycles. This means they will be heard only when receivers are tuned to those frequencies.

Conelrad has been specially designed to permit public broadcasting of essential emergency information and instructions and still make it impossible for the enemy to utilize radio beams as navigational aids for his aircraft and missiles.

Crawn further reported that all division heads of the Monroe County Civil Defense agency should report to county headquarters between 4:30-5 p.m. to answer requests from areas which theoretically were attacked by the air attack. He said officials should be prepared to remain on duty until about 7 p.m.

Viewing the Screens

A SERIES of film journeys will make its debut tonight on "Bold Journey" with host John Stevenson at 7:30 on Ch. 3 and 4. Guests will be those who took the journey, amateur photographers, explorers and writers. Typical recipes from the areas visited will also be featured.

Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, will star on "The Voice of Firestone" at 8:30 on ch. 3 and 4.

Work Of Artists To Be On Display

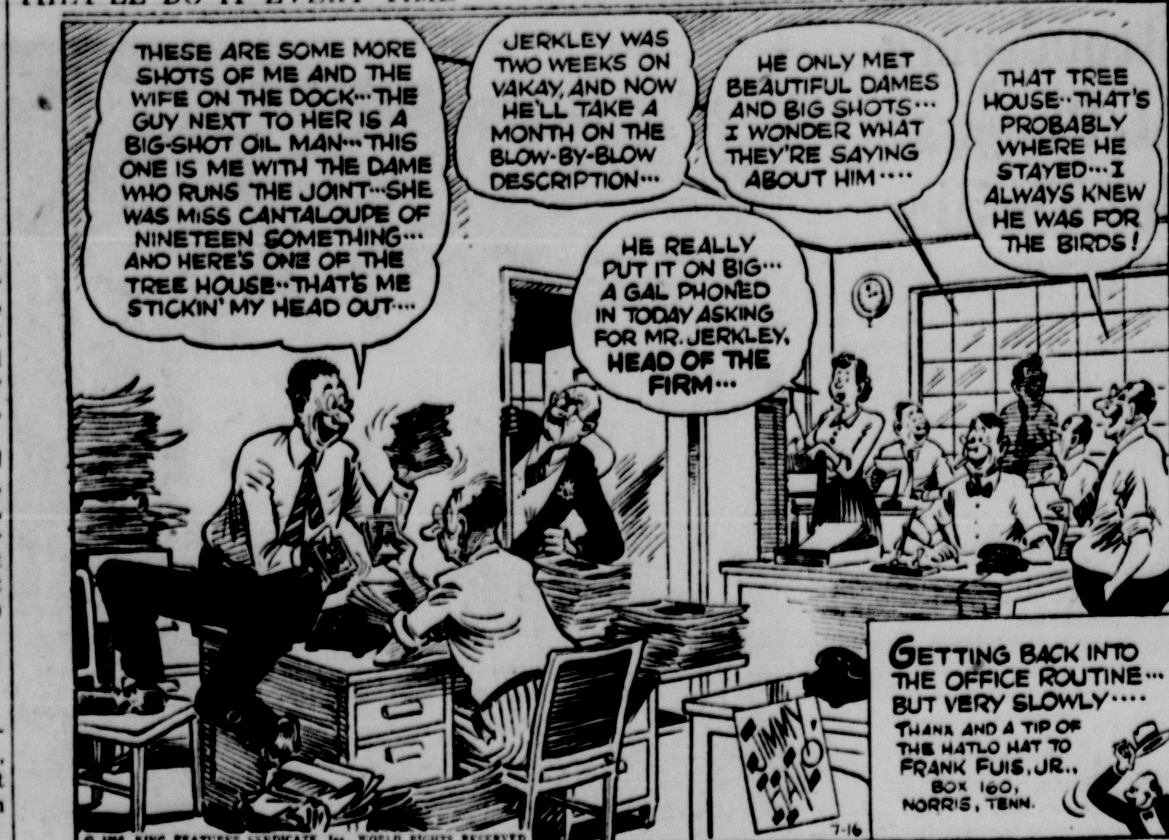

A LARGE show of work by well-known U. S. artists arranged by Dr. Eugene Oxendler, State Teachers College associate professor of art, has been extended through this week at the Gallery Art Club studio on Crystal St., East Stroudsburg.

Artists whose work is included are the following: Samuel Adler, Burluk, Stephano Cusumano, Martin Friedman, Maurice Golubov, Robert Gwathmey, Gerritt Hondius, Egon Kaskelnie, Walt Kuhn, Ethel Leventhal, Herman Oxendler, and Sol Wilson.

Named To Deans List

BETHELEHEM — Donald C. Garavito, 215 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg, has been named to the dean's list for the Spring semester at Lehigh University.

Confraternity Plans For Coming Year

AN EXECUTIVE board meeting of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine of St. Matthew's Church was held last week in the school auditorium. At this meeting the six group chairmen of the CCD gave the following reports:

Parent Education Group

Four meetings of the Parent Educators section were held the past month for the purpose of discussion of the subject being "Safe at Home."

They have made many home visits and a record of these visits are being kept on file.

Fishers Group

A parish survey is being conducted by the "Fishers" in East Stroudsburg. The area is broken down into 12 districts. They are concentrating on the College Hill section of two districts at the present time.

It is the hope of the chairmen of the Fishers to get more people interested in going out and visiting the homes.

Discussion Club Group

It was reported that five Discussion Clubs are now operating and are doing very well. Plans are being made for many more to be functioning in the near future.

Helpers Group

It is planned to open the Catholic Information Center in the Indian Queen Hotel on Sunday, Aug. 19. This will be operated by members of the CCD.

The CCD is appealing to the public for books for its library which is going to be in the Information Center.

Anyone who has any literature at all that would be of help is asked to bring it to St. Matthew's or St. Luke's Church and place it on a table that will be placed in the rear of the church for that purpose.

Apostolate of Good Will
Confraternity Digest published by members of the CCD is progressing very well and it has been found necessary to raise the number of the Digest's to 2,000 copies. This is a bi-monthly publication.

Teachers Division

Teacher division has ceased meeting until September. However, most of the members of this division have jobs in the next month. Josephine McGowan is organizing a bowling league for the students, which will commence at the beginning of the Fall term. Also in the line of social activities Miss McGowan is in the initial stage of planning a Passion play. Besides being social director she has also taken the job of Registrar and has supplied the High School with all the necessary forms and records. These include attendance, report cards, promotion and a form to keep the entire record of the student from the freshman year to his graduation.

John Kupiec, although away for the summer, is working on a curriculum calendar and also lesson planning to aid the individual teacher in his work.

Mrs. George Rung as librarian is going to order and supervise the handling of the text books. These are to include a paper bound volume of the New Testament for use in the freshman year and the first half of the sophomore year. For the remainder of the second year the student will use a paper bound book of the history of the church through biography. For third year she is ordering a book on the "sacraments" and a book of the study of the "Mass". If possible supplying a missal (Father Stedman) to the juniors is advisable.

Mrs. Boushell will be studying the Life of Christ for the next month to prepare for her job as freshman teacher next year. And Mrs. James Coleman is doing likewise with the Mass and the Sacraments for her job as junior teacher.

Marie Brown as supervisor of the high school is preparing for the meetings in September when she will conduct four weekly meetings to instruct and refresh the faculty in Methods.

Finally starting about the middle of August plans call for an extensive publicity campaign to promote attendance.

More Raids Planned

PHILADELPHIA, July 15 (AP) — More raids by Internal Revenue agents to collect social security and withholding taxes from business firms in eastern Pennsylvania can be expected, Charles E. Dorfman, district supervisor for the agency, said today.

Your Horoscope Today
By FRANCIS DRAKE
MONDAY, JULY 16, 1956
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Benefic influences. Projects requiring mental work, quick judgment, discernment favored. Don't waste time on non-essentials. P. M. favors detection, police work.
April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Think before you act. Through wise management much progress can be made. Your intuitive powers could be used to advantage now.
May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Encouraging vibrations to spur you on. Give a full measure of performance. Direct energies along lines that will reap most needed benefits. Don't burden yourself with unessential.
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Like Gemini, you have friendly influences. Complete assigned tasks with speed, thoroughness. Remember that actions speak louder than words, so make a real name for yourself. Relax in free hours.
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Busy, eager to get ahead. Folk can turn this day's activities into real gains. The bizarre and unconventional should be avoided. Use discretion in personal interests, investments.
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Benefits are possible through sound management. Don't promise or act without forethought; be constructive. Little details can be as important to the whole picture as the prime idea.
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—As the day proceeds, complete unfinished business, not haphazardly, but with finesse. Use care in signing agreements, contracts. Sudden changes not advised. Avoid sharp criticism of others.
October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Generous influences evident. Make the most of them and give a top performance. Let your pleasant disposition shine where it will do the most good. Proceed with definiteness, simplicity.
November 24 to December 31 (Sagittarius)—Avoid extravagance. Cooperation with worthwhile individuals, insurance and investments call for alert attention to details. Be awake.
January 1 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Your sympathy and the humanitarian instincts of your Sign can lead to wise connections if you are not careful. Your ability to deal in facts rather than theories can be a great help.
February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—A day for getting folk on your feet. Be cheerful, have faith, and have fun. You are cheerful, have faith, and have fun. You are cheerful, have faith, and have fun. You are cheerful, have faith, and have fun.
YOLK TOYDAY have many talents and a likable personality which should help you along the road to happiness. Be cheerful, have faith, and have fun. You are cheerful, have faith, and have fun. You are cheerful, have faith, and have fun.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 8. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right, then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Knights To Hold Regular Meeting Today

REGULAR monthly meeting of the Father Butler Council Knights of Columbus will be held today at 8 p. m. at the Italian Club.

Grand Knight elect John J. Garrity announced that new officers elected for the 1956-57 term will be installed at this meeting. District Deputy William F. May, Scranton, will install the officers.

Appointments for the new Six Point Program for the coming year will be announced.

The Grand Knight has received a request from the chairman of the Helpers Division of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine that it is in need of suitable books to use in the Catholic Information Center and Library which expects to open in the very near future.

The Grand Knight requests that all members who have books of a religious nature and wish to donate them to this project should bring them to the meeting tonight. All council members are asked to be present at this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Scholarship For Nancy Siglin

MOUNTAINHOME—Word has just been received that Nancy Jayne Siglin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Reed Siglin of Laurel Pine Road, has been awarded an academic scholarship by Albright College, Reading, Pa.

Miss Siglin was one of the three honor graduates of Barrett Township High School and was a commencement speaker at the graduation exercises last month. Nancy had been active in the school band for six years, mixed chorus for three years, and accompanist for the girls chorus.

Music
She was awarded the first Music Award given by Barrett High School at this year's Spring Concert. She was a member of the Health and Safety Club, Secretary of the Senior Class, active in forensics, spelling champion of her class for one year and a business manager of the Yearbook.

A member of the Barrett Ambulance Corps and active in the Canadensis Methodist Church round out her community activities.

Pen Argyl Holds Parade Of Umbrellas

PEN ARGYL.—Pen Argyl Recreation Program held its annual umbrella parade and contest on Friday at Weona Park. The umbrellas were of various varieties—running from the ridiculous to the sublime.

After a parade around the park, a contest was held at the bandshell. Awards were as follows: prettiest, Julia Ceraul and Marsha Mervine; smallest, Jeanette Due; and most original Helena Fiorglio.

Judges
Judges for the event were Mrs. John Herd, and Mrs. Harold Albert. The contest was under the direction of Mrs. Kenneth Altman and Miss Nancy Jowell. Harry Mervine, recreation supervisor announced that a dress up parade will be held next week.

There are 20½ square miles in the island of Bermuda.

78 Per Cent Of County In Forests

APPROXIMATELY 78 per cent of Monroe County is woodland acreage, while Pike County features 89 per cent of its land in forests and Northampton County 25 per cent.

In a broad way, all forestry is agriculture because it is the raising of a crop from the land. Wood should be considered just as much a crop of the soil as are corn, wheat or potatoes. Landowners do not depend on nature alone to produce field crops, but aid nature in one way or another so their fields may yield larger and better crops. Likewise, if sound woodland management principles are applied the woodland can be made to yield a more profitable timber crop.

Advice
Woodland owners in Northampton, Monroe and Pike Counties can receive advice on the management of their woodlands through the Department of Forests and Waters, 1081 West Main St., Stroudsburg. Write to the above address or phone Stroudsburg: 590 for an appointment.
